

FOUNDATION BEEFMASTER ASSOCIATION'S 21ST ANNUAL CONVENTION WINDS UP IN ARIZONA

The hotel cooperated with great meeting rooms and wonderful food. The tour bus companies cooperated with state-of-the-art transportation that seemed more like a modern jet plane than a tour bus. And finally, mother nature cooperated with bright, clear, blue skies, no wind and temperatures in the upper 70's. In fact, mother nature delivered a double-dose of beautiful weather. She sent it to the actual meeting site in Scottsdale, Arizona and she also provided a wonderful day for the ranch tour which was held at the Flake Ranch (F Bar Cattle Co.) in Snowflake, Arizona.

The association's standing committees were called to order and went to work at 7:30 am on Thursday, November 5th. Some of these committee meetings continued, off and on, for several days. As always, the "official" committee members were joined by the "non-official" members for the committee business and discussions. A lot of work gets done in the committee meetings and they represent an excellent opportunity for member input.

On Thursday evening, all of the candidates running for election to the Board of Directors were introduced during a special "Meet The Candidates" reception. In addition to meeting the candidates, everyone gets a chance to see friend and fellow FBA members and find out . . . "How has everything been going with your folks?"

On Friday, November 6th, President Bev Sparrowk called the general membership meeting to order. Following adoption of the minutes from the previous meeting, various committee reports were given.

In her President's Report, Bev spoke of her many visits to the various FBA satellite seminars and field days. She reported that she and Mary Wilkinson, the association's Executive Secretary, traveled together and attended just about everything there was from one end of the country to the other.

In her report Mary Wilkinson, agreed with President Sparrowk's feelings regarding the success of both FBA and its satellites, but pointed out that a little history had been made during the year. She said, "I have been traveling to all of the satellite events for a number of years, but this is the first time I ever shared my room with the president."

Mary pointed out that this years certifications are running almost three times higher than any other year in the past. She said, "This is, of course, in response to the new certification rules and rates.", Mary stressed the importance of everybody certifying all of their cattle. She said, "If everybody does that we will continue to be a strong viable organization."

Committee reports were given, as were reports by representatives from each of the satellite organizations, and FBA's N.C.A. representative.

This year's convention featured an excellent panel discussion and centered on the growing controversy surrounding multiple use of public lands. The panel was ably moderated by Dr. William J. Broussard of Melbourne, Florida.

Dr. Broussard introduced the panel members: Mr. Wayne Hage, one of the nation's foremost authorities on property rights and author of the book "Storm Over Rangelands" Mr. Flake, prominent Arizona rancher and first hand authority of the ever growing role of government control through regulation of public as well as private land, Mr. John Upton Hays, a member of the board of the Nature Conservancy of Arizona and an active cattle rancher and Mr. Stan Parson, a highly respected ranch management consultant.

As one would expect, the discussion focused around the need for cooperation and dialogue between what has been described by some as "waring factions"

If, however, one was looking for a "war", it didn't happen.

All panel members were extremely articulate and stated their widely differing view points clearly and concisely. Inadvertently the primary message of all the panel members was captured earlier, at lunch, when the keynote luncheon speaker, Mr. Stan Turley said, "We've got to stop shootin' and start talkin'."

Editor's Mail

Dear Mary,

I am very sorry to have to tell you, I lost Kelver on August 31. He passed away with cancer. His health had been failing for quite some time, all year he hadn't been feeling well or up to par.

When the doctors finally ran all the tests and found the cancer, it had taken over his body and nothing could be done. He went into the hospital on the 19th of August and passed away the morning of the 31st.

I sure do miss him and things will be hard without him, but he has taught me all he knew about cattle. Our Beefmaster cattle were his pride and joy, and mine also. We have spent many enjoyable times working with them together. Now that I am without him, I feel his love and presence when I'm out with the cattle. I plan to keep the Dowlen's Slash D Beefmasters going and improving as was our dream.

Mary, since our membership in F.B.A. was a joint membership in both our names, should this now be changed to just my name? If so, please change the membership to Shirley Dowlen.

Sincerely, Shirley Dowlen

SOUTHERN BEEFMASTER BREEDERS FIELD DAY

The Southern Beefmaster Breeders will be holding their Annual Field Day on December 5th, at Ham Wilson Livestock Arena, Auburn University. The field day begins at 9:00 am and ends at 3:00 pm with lunch served at 12:00 noon. It requires a $5.00 registration fee which includes lunch and a drawing for a $50.00 Gift Certificate towards the purchase of a Beefmaster animal.

There will also be several featured speakers discussing several different topics which include:

"History of Beefmasters"

Dr. William Broussard, Melbourne, Florida

"Beefmaster Association Philosophy"
O. C. Rampley, FBA President

"Forage Crop Specifics" Dr. Don Hall

"Reproduction Health" Bob Carson, DVM

"Beefmaster Performance in the Feedlot" George Perry, owner of GM Feedlot Appleton, MO

DON'T DROP THE BALL

One of the many benefits of being involved with FBA is the privilege of attending the FBA convention each year. This year was no exception. As usual, the office staff had a well planned, well executed event. Our thanks to Mary, Phyllis and Barbara for all the work they did to make it a success.

Another event that is always rewarding to those attending is the ranch tour we attend. This year we were privileged to be able to visit the Flake Ranch at Snowflake and see a first rate Beefmaster operation. The Flake family were very gracious and had a well planned tour, wonderful meal and even great entertainment. We also saw a cattle operation where it was obvious that upgrading and culling works. We saw some good quality cattle. Thanks to the Flake family for a great day.

One thing that is unique in FBA is the input from the membership at the board meetings. When the committee meetings were held the first day of the convention, several members, other than just the board of directors, were present and took part in the discussions. Their opinions, were well received nd had an impact on the decisions that the board made.

Minutes of the meeting will be sent to every member, but I would like to highlight one area of discussion. I serve on the finance committee and have been concerned about the effect the new fee schedule would have on our financial status. Well, it's working! We expected to have tripled the number of certificates issued in order to make the new program work and we are looking at that being the case by the end of the year. To date, we are on schedule, so please Don't Drop The Ball.

When you keep certificates on the 0-12 month olds current every year, the cost will be about the same to you and the operations of the association can continue to serve the membership in the same first class way. The FBA Board of directors asked Mary to provide a list of the members and the number of certificates they applied for and to say thanks for their supporting FBA.

Next year's convention is in Colorado Springs, Colorado and is at an affordable rate, in a nice place, and I guarantee the nicest people in the cattle business will be there. So start making plans now to attend.

Barbara Truitt Director

TO ALL HOA MEMBERS

The HOA Beefmaster exhibit done by Rick and Gail Newman at the 1992 Ozark Fall Farmfest, October 2, 3 & 4 at the Springfield, Missouri Fairgounds, was so well done and apparently so successful that I thought you would like to know about it.

Rick and Gail exhibited two excellent cow-calf pairs and two heifers, one of which had weaned at the whopping weight of 810 lbs.; Charlie Bird exhibited an outstanding yearling bull; and I sent 1,935 lb three-year old herd sire that I had bought from Jim Willis as a yearling. All of the cattle were a credit to the breed. This made five pens of cattle with a display area where the table, pictures, literature, etc. were. About 250 HOA/FBA packets were handed out to viewers who seemed genuinely interested, and 16 Breeders' business cards were displayed and the appropriate ones handed out to viewers who asked about Breeders in their area. The HOA banner and the membership board were displayed as well as three additional signs which Rick and Gail made or had made that answered the most commonly asked questions about Beefmasters. Of course, individual data was posted on each pen.

Our thanks go to Charles Rainwater for donating the use of the pen panels, to Fred and Nancy Farthing for helping Friday and Saturday afternoons (Fred had volunteered the use of his panels too, but they were 12 footers and we were only allowed to use 10 foot ones), to Jack Gregory for helping Saturday afternoon, and to Charlie Bird for helping Sunday afternoon and dropping by Friday evening. Dean Freeman had volunteered to help and would have but couldn't because of his father's illness. Several other members also dropped by and we thank

The display and the cattle were so impressive that those who worked were kept busy answering questions, handing out packets and business cards, and, of course, cleaning out pens.

I thought the whole exhibit was very well done and that those involved should be commended.

Ted Sare

SOUTHERN BEEFMASTER BREEDERS START 3RD ANNUAL FORAGE TEST

Southern Beefmaster Breeders have started the 3rd Annual Forage test for weaned bulls on October 30th. The consignments from Gowan, Wallace and War Eagle began testing on rye grass for 140 days and will sell in the South Mississippi Forage Test Sale on April 10, 1993 at Tylertown, Mississippi.

These are quality bulls and will have 205 weights, 140 day grass gain data, complete health programs, breeding soundness exams, pelvic measures and frame scores.

NCA OUTLOOK ON CLINTON ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 4,1992 – The nation's cattle producers look forward to participating in the Clinton Administration as key policy decisions impacting the cattle business are made, the National Cattlemen's Association said today.

"We welcome the opportunity to brief not only the members of the new administration, but the new congressional members as well," said NCA President Jimme Wilson, Trout Creek, Mont. "We look forward to cooperating with the Clinton Administration to accomplish NCA's mission to advance the economic, political and social interests of NCA members and the U.S. cattle industry. With so many new people in both the Congress and the administration, that mission will be an an exciting challenge as we work to educate all of them about the importance of the beef cattle business to society, the economy and the environment in a short period of time."

Cattle producers in Arkansas have first hand experience in working with Bill Clinton.

"As Governor, Bill Clinton has been very supportive of Arkansas cattlemen in state issues, such as brucellosis control and natural disasters," said Leland Jackson, Ash Flat, Ark., president of the Arkansas Cattlemen's Association. "We have had a superior working relationship with him. Agriculture has a friend in Bill Clinton."

NCA Regional Vice President John McKnight, Searcy, Ark., said that as Governor, Bill Clinton has relied on farm leaders for input into agriculture policy. "He has had an open door policy and is responsive to agriculture. I would fully expect that to continue on the national level," he said. "Because of his Arkansas background, whatever his main thrust is as president, I don't believe that agriculture will ever be sacrificed at the expense of other programs. I feel we in agriculture will get just and fair treatment whatever the future holds."

Among President-Elect Clinton's first order of business will be to make Cabinet appointments as well as name candidates to other key administration positions, Wilson said. There are more than 4,000 political appointments for the Clinton administration to fill.

"We will monitor the process and provide input at every opportunity, supporting and promoting candidates wherever we can." Wilson said.

The first 100 days of the 103rd Congress will be the most critical for a Clinton Administration. "Clinton will likely hit the ground running on an economic growth package and health care reform," said Wilson. "This could be the litmus test on how effective Clinton will be in getting his agenda through Congress.

Wilson said that the 103rd Congress will also take action on reauthorization of both the Endangered Species Act and the Clean Water Act, the North American Free Trade Agreement, and an anticipated attempt to increase grazing fees on federal lands. President-Elect Clinton will also attempt to finalize negotiations on a General Agreement on Tariff and Trade. This anticipated action makes NCA membership more important than ever, he said.

"The record-setting voter turnout in the 1992 elections sends a clear message to both the administration and Congress that the American people will be more involved in the political process, Wilson said. "This means that cattlemen will be competing with more people than ever in getting our message to policy makers. Our success will depend on a strong, united association. I challenge each NCA member to get neighboring cattlemen to join both state cattlemen's associations and the NCA to be assured of an effective voice in Washington, D.C."

BEYOND BEEF TARGETS GOLDEN ARCHES

Jeremy Rifkin and the Beyond Beef Campaign have quieted down, but they haven't gone away. Rifkin and Beyond Beef Campaign Executive Director Howard Lyman are recruiting volunteers to join 1,000 Adopt-A-McDonald's Teams. The teams of four will be used to distribute brochures entitled, "The Real Cost of a Hamburger" to patrons at America's No. 1 restaurant. The brochures contains standard activist rhetoric blaming cattle for rainforest destruction, world hunger, water depletion, global warming, heart disease, stroke and cancer. The brochures likely will be handed out some time this spring. Campaign officials say they hope to reach at least 1 million customers and force McDonald's to aggressively promote a vegetarian diet. Beyond Beef is demanding that McDonald's promote vegetarian meals in its restaurants, place vegetarian alternatives to hamburger on its menu and devote 25 percent of its advertising budget to promote meatless alternatives. NCA and the Beef Industry Council are working with McDonald's to outline an industry strategy for responding

CATTLE SAID ENDANGERING SOUTHWEST BIRD

Cattle production in the Southwest could be seriously affected by a proposal by the Fish and Wildlife Service to list the southwestern willow flycatcher as an endangered species. The bird already is listed as threatened or endangered in California, Arizona and New Mexico. FWS claims livestock grazing has a detrimental impact on the bird's habitat. Grazing destroys nests, changes riparian vegetation, reduces habitat and attracts predatory brownheaded cowbirds, FWS says. A very disturbing aspect of this FWS petition is that the southwestern willow flycatcher is a subspecies, raising questions regarding whether it legitimately belongs on the endangered species list, says NCA Director of Private Lands and Environment Kathleen Hartnett. It also is disturbing that the bird's habitat covers a large area, encompassing the entire Southwest and parts of the West. "The only way to counter endangered-species listings is through sound biology," said Haartnett. "The livestock industry has a great need for much better biological information to slow up endangeredspecies listings."

21ST ANNUAL CONVENTION WINDS UP

Mr. Turley spent 20 years as a rancher near Queen Creek, Arizona, 22 years in the Arizona state legislator and 19 years as a livestock, ranch and farm specialist for First Interstate Bank. He delivered a highly entertaining talk that was primarily a collection of very funny stories. Stan said, "If you can be a rancher, a politician and a banker all in one lifetime you're just bound to collect a lot of pretty good stories."

One of the primary duties of the convention is the election of new board members to replace the out-going members. Newly selected Directors are: Danny Safrit of North State Beefmasters in Concord, North Carolina, Carson Scheller of Scheller Beefmasters in Los Alamos, California, Gale Stafford of Stafford Farm Beefmasters in Matador, Texas and Oran Tracy of T.O. Beefmasters in Virgil, Kansas.

Following the general membership meeting, the new board held their first meeting and elected officers for the coming year. O.C. Rampley, Silverton, Texas was elected President; Gerry Holmes, Falkville, Alabama, Vice President; Barbara Truitt, Sheldon Missouri, Secretary; and Jed Flake, Snowflake, Arizona, Treasurer.

The convention ended on Saturday with a ranch tour of the F Bar Cattle Co. the ranch is a partnership between four of the Flake Brothers: Dean, Jake, Jed and Steve.

Those state-of-the art busses loaded everyone up bright and early and headed north for an outstanding day. It started with a delightful rid through a lot of beautiful country. The land between Scottsdale and Snowflake is mountainous, pine forest with wonderful scenery and dramatic vistas.

Once at the ranch FBA members saw several groups of cows, calves that had just been weaned and bulls. As one visitor said, "These are impressive cattle . . . just look at that cow . . . . talk about long, whey she stretches from here to back home." Consider his home is in North Carolina that might have been just a bit of an exaggeration.

Following the tour of the ranch, the busses took everyone into the Snowflake Community Hall for one of the biggest and best steak dinners ever served. It even included home made root beer. The Flake family also invited "The Kinsmen," a local quartet, to entertain during the meal. They sounded a little like a cross between the Gatlins and Alabama and just as good. Everyone was amazed that a town the size of Snowflake would have a quartet as professional as the Kinsmen,

There's no question that the cattle on the ranch tour were impressive, but everyone agreed nothing was as impressive as the Flake family itself. It's a big, sprawling group that takes care of everybody, loves everybody and brings new meaning to the word hospitality.

RECIPE BROCHURE HEATS UP CONSUMER TASTE FOR BEEF

Americans are busy cooking up the meals promoted in the beef industry ad campaign, "Beef. It's What's for Dinner," thanks to a collateral recipe brochure called 30 Neals In 30 Minutes. The 30 recipes complement the "easy versatility" theme of the beef industry ad campaign. The recipes make beef the centerpiece of delicious, easy-toprepare meals.

A condensed version of the booklet, a brochure called "Beef. It's What's for Dinner," is being widely distributed by state beef councils. It contains nine delicious and convenient beef meal ideas.

"The recipes were based on what people want to eat at the end of a busy work day," says Don Sonnier, a Louisiana beef producer and chairman of the Beef Industry Council (BIC) Advertising Subcommittee. "Each recipe we've given them can be prepared in less than 30 minutes, from refrigerator to table. That's less time than it takes to have a pizza delivered to your home."

The recipes provide fresh, new flavor profiles for beef, including dishes such as "Italian Beef Stir-Fry," "Southwestern Beef Hash" and "Blue Cheese Tenderloin Steaks." The brochure also offers convenient side dish suggestions for beef recipes, including garlic bread, green beans and deli cole slaw. These recipes position beef as part of a full meal and help take the burden of meal planning off the minds of time-strained consumers.

According to Sonnier, the BIC printed 400,000 copies of the "Beef. It's What's for Dinner" brochure in June to coincide with the launch of the new campaign. State beef councils distributing the brochure found such tremendous consumer interest that the supply was depleted by August. An additional 300,000 copies of the brochure were created and are currently being used as part of states' consumer and media-oriented beef promotion efforts.

"The state beef councils are doing all sorts of things to get these booklets distributed and to put popular beef recipes in peoples' hands," Sonnier says.

State councils distributing the brochure have made it available at community events such as state fairs and college football games. They have also enclosed it in media mailings.

"People want to know how to fix delicious beef, as is evident by the number of brochures we've gone through," says Sonnier. "Checkoff-funded efforts are helping consumers prepare the meals they love."

Advertising is part of checkoff-funded promotion programs funded by the Beef Board and managed by the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board, a federation of 44 state beef councils that works to build demand for beef.

BEEF "ON" FORAGE BEEFMASTER BULL SALE

A large crowd gathered October 17, in Brenham, Texas for the Central Texas Beefmaster Breeders Sixth Annual, Beef "ON" Forage Beefmaster Bull Sale. The offering included 99 lots of high quality, performances tested, forage developed bulls, averaging 22 months of age. The sale grossed an impressive $233,850 to average $2,362 a lot. Fifty-eight buyers from 4 states aggressively bid on the heavy muscled, high performing bulls which sold with complete performance information to include: weaning weights, gain weights, yearling weights, weight per day of age, ratios, rib-eye measurements and scrotal circumference. These Foundation bred bulls where consigned by 24 members of the Central Texas Beefmaster Breeders who are members of the Foundation Beefmaster Association. The bulls had been tested for over 300 days on forages under the Guidelines of the Texas Forage and Grassland Council Forage Bull Development Program.

Topping the sale at $7,000 was a Frenzel Beefmasters, Temple, Texas consignment which sold to Spade Beefmasters, Menard Texas. Volume buyers included: Arnold Jensen, Lexington, Texas 9 bulls; Rosemary McDowell Ranches, Big Spring, Texas, 5 bulls; Bob Gresham, Centerville, Texas, 5 bulls; and Thomas Ranch, Richards, Texas, 4 bulls.

Over 160 bulls have been consigned for the Seventh Annual Test and Sale. For more information contact: Gary J. Frenzel. Route 3, Box 280, Temple, Texas or call (817) 983-2901
